Dead: Ricky Reel's body was found in the Thames

Vigil: Sukhdev Reel campaigned for a fresh inquiry into her son's death

FAMILY TO BE SHOWN SECRET POLICE FILES

● Mother seeking answers to son's death offered access to edited reports on surveillance

CHIEF REPORTER
NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@
london.newsquest.co.uk

Police have agreed to disclose secret reports to a mother who was spied on by officers as she sought answers to her son's death in Kingston almost 18 years ago.

Sukhdev Reel, 65, was monitored by undercover Metropolitan Police officers as she campaigned to find out what happened to her son Ricky Reel, 20.

The Brunel University student vanished after going to Options nightclub in Clarence Street on October 15, 1997. His body was pulled from the Thames a week later.

Mrs Reel has always maintained her son was murdered, although Kingston police have always insisted there was no evidence to suggest foul play.

Last year, after she was told she had been spied on, Mrs Reel launched a petition calling for a public inquiry into undercover police investigations. It has so far been signed by more than 78,000 people.

This week, the retired council worker said she has now been invited to read redacted reports of the police's information on her.

Mrs Reel said: "Out of the blue they have said we can view the reports.

"I don't know what they are going to say, but the reports will be redacted so it is not a full, frank disclosure.

"We are disappointed, but not surprised – it has been their attitude all along.

"We want to see what the reports contain and how many of them there were and who had been collating them – what was the point of them? "What were they going to use them for? What was the reason for spying on us?"

"Resources should have been spent on investigating Ricky's murder, not on spying on us as an innocent family.

"We are hoping the reports will shed some light about what was going on. We are going to go with an open mind."

A police spokesman would not confirm Mrs Reel's claims about the reports.

On the night he vanished, Ricky Reel and his friends were racially abused by a group of white men.

Mrs Reel has previously said her son's disappearance was not treated seriously by Kingston police officers, who initially suggested he may have run away from an arranged marriage or to be with a boyfriend.

She also said police in Kingston and her hometown West Drayton "passed her around like a football" by suggesting it came under the other's jurisdiction.

Mrs Reel's petition calls for a public inquiry, a police apology, assurances that spying on family justice campaigns has been stopped and legal aid for the families involved.

Others spied on by police after losing their loved ones include the families of Stephen Lawrence and Jean Charles de Menezes.

Anyone with information about the death of Ricky Reel can call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

A new technical college by 2017?

REPORTER

RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@london.newsquest.co.uk

A new specialist college for up to 800 students could be opened in Kingston by 2017, according to the group behind the project.

A bid is being put together to create Kingston University Technical College – a school teaching practical and vocational courses for students aged 14 to 19.

If successful, the UTC could be operating by September 2017, although a site for the college is yet to be found.

Project manager Maundy Todd said: "We have a huge demand for more school places in Kingston and it has been documented over the years that employers cannot find people with the skills they need."

"I got very excited about bringing this kind of educational establishment to Kingston. This kind of institute has to be driven by employer needs.

"The whole thing is about building partnerships."

Introduced under the previous coalition Government, UTCs work on the same premise as free schools, in that bids are submitted by groups and organisations.

They offer full-time technical courses for students looking to enter a specific trade or industry.

They work with local businesses and specialise in a specific subject, usually one where there are a lack of skills in the area.

The Kingston UTC bid is being backed by organisations including LGC Group, Berkeley Group, Kingston Hospital, Barclays Bank and small businesses led by New England Seafood, Genuine Solutions Group and Signature.

A spokeswoman for Kingston Hospital said it was hoped the college would specialise in health.

She said: "Having a college that specialises in health and social sciences would not only be beneficial for recruiting staff for the hospital but also for other local organisations."

In February former Richmond Park and North Kingston MP Zac Goldsmith also brought the idea before the House of Commons with Lord Baker, the man behind the Baker Deering Trust which sponsors the UTC programme.

Ed Davey, Kingston and Surbiton's Liberal Democrat candidate said: "I am behind anything that will bring more skills to the area, however, the financials of the project like this have to be properly worked out."

Mr Davey also questioned where such a large site would be located in the borough.

Specialist colleges: Mayor Boris Johnson and the Duke of York visit a UTC in Greenwich in 2013 Deadlinepix GC80338

He said: "This would be a big college and it is extremely important that the local people will have to be consulted properly."

But Mrs Todd said: "The UTC programme is very well established and if they don't think we can do it they will not give us permission."

The bid will be submitted in October to the Baker Deering Trust.

KINGS AND QUEENS: Annual bank holiday event explores town's royal heritage

A big day for Merrie-making

REPORTER
RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@
london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingston played host to medieval royalty during the Monday bank holiday with the annual May Merrie festival.

This year's theme was "crowning Kingston" and carnival goers were treated to re-enactments, Morris dancing and medieval gaming in the streets.

The event explored Kingston's heritage as the site where Saxon kings were crowned.

Representations of ancient, modern and fictional kings and queens took part in a re-enactment of the country's first Saxon king.

Other "royals" included Elsa from Disney's Frozen who posed for photographs with children.

This was reportedly Kingston's biggest May Merrie's yet with events taking place across the town and centred around the ancient market place.

The action began at 8am with the decoration of Castle Street and Clarence Street and ended at 5pm with jazz singing in the market square.

A giant chess board outside the Druid's Head pub was a particularly big attraction with carnival attendees pitted against the royal court.

Fun: Music, morris dancing, giant chess and Elsa from Frozen were just some of the highlights at Kingston's May Merrie festival MURDER TRIAL: The Old Bailey trial of a man accused of murdering his mother has been moved back to May 21. Sean Heiss, 30, formerly of the Sheraton, Surbiton, is charged with killing Margot Sheehy at her Kingston home in 2012.

MEMORIAL SERVICE: A memorial service for a former Beverley School headmaster will take place next weekend. Henry Fisher, who died last year, was headmaster of the school, since renamed Coombe Boys, from 1960 to 1984. The service will start at 1pm in St James Church, Bodley Road, on Saturday, May 16. All are welcome to attend.

HAND TRAPPED: A child had to be rescued after getting her fingers stuck in a parking meter in New Malden High Street. Fire and ambulance crews were called at 4.20pm on Thursday to free the young girl. She did not require hospital attention after her hand was freed.

PIGEON 'PLUCKER': Police rescued a pigeon which had apparently been abducted by a man who stuffed it into a bag in the middle of Kingston town centre on Thursday. Officers were called to Clarence Street, outside All Saints Church, by a concerned member of the public who reported seeing a man attempting to break a pigeon's neck. When the officer arrived he found an elderly man with the bird, still alive, in his bag. He told police that he liked to take them home and pluck their feathers off. Sergeant Dave Williams said: "He was an eccentric character I think. If our officer hadn't gone down and rescued the pigeon who knows what horrible fate it would have had."

FOR VALOUR: A memorial plaque will be unveiled outside Surbiton war memorial to commemorate Victoria Cross recipient Douglas Belcher this month. The former Tiffin School pupil and lance-sergeant was given the nation's highest award for valour for his heroism at Ypres in 1915. The ceremony will take place in Ewell Road on Saturday, May 16, from 2.30pm.

Sardine festival proves key to enjoyable day by river

They were packed on to the bank of the Thames like sardines – appropriately enough.

Surbiton's sunny sardine festival drew a record crowd this year for the first main event in the Surbiton Food Festival programme.

The traditional parade from Claremont Gardens to the river was followed by a barbecue and music in the park.

Robin Hutchinson, of organisers the Community Brain, said: "The reaction was fabulous with so many people saying what a special day it was and how great Surbiton is."

"This was without any doubt the best sardine festival ever with people coming from all over London to take part. We are all looking forward to the village fete this weekend."

The village fete will be held on Saturday, May 9, and Sunday, May 10, from noon to 6pm in St Andrew's Square.

£148k-a-year chief exec fails to respond to our questions Child services boss silent on £7.5m cuts

JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@
london.newsquest.co.uk

The company running children's services in Kingston and Richmond has been forced to make £7.5m of cuts in its first three years.

Achieving for Children (AfC), a community interest company launched in April 2014 after Kingston's "inadequate" Ofsted report two years earlier, had said it faces "challenging efficiency targets" imposed by its parent councils.

It has already been told to cut £3.5m from its £107m budget and faces further saving targets of £2m in 2015-16 and the following year, while seeking to maintain "the breadth and quality" of its services.

The company's business plan states it will expand to bring in £6m of extra business from other councils.

The Kingston Guardian contacted Kingston Council with questions for AfC's £148,263-per-year chief executive Nick Whitfield, after the company's first year. He is yet to respond.

Questions included how he plans to make the multi-million-pound cuts, whether or not a forecast overspend last year actually occurred, and where AfC's first round of cuts fell.

The Kingston Guardian also asked whether AfC had achieved its first-year goals, which included:

- To see Kingston's notice to improve, imposed by the Government in 2012, lifted.

- To provide "strong" evidence to suggest both Richmond and Kingston could be judged "good" by the watchdog.

- To fully integrate services with reduced management costs.

- To deliver efficiency savings for 2014-15 and put in place an "achievable" plan for 2015-16.

Was man found on fire let down by trust?

An investigation has been launched into the death of a man who was found on fire in a New Malden street.

Colin Edwards, 51, died in March a few days after he was found with 50 per cent burns outside Clear House in Kingston Road, where it is believed he was sleeping.

Friends and acquaintances raised concerns he had been let down by authorities.

School friend John Ridley told the Kingston Guardian last month: "Colin has always been a bit of a loner. He had mental health problems and the authorities would not deal with it."

"He was put on a shelf to rot. That's why he got into this mess. I saw him a couple of weeks ago and he said 'They won't house me, they won't come near me'."

"No one wanted to help him. He should have been in care accommodation or sheltered accommodation."

A spokesman acting for

Kingston Council and South West London and St George's Mental Health Trust, which runs Tolworth Hospital, said: "The council and South West London and St George's Mental Health NHS Trust extend our deepest sympathies to family and friends at this distressing time. As with all cases of this nature, the trust will conduct an investigation into the case and will be liaising with other agencies, including Kingston's housing team to conclude."

Lib Dems on 'list' for lack of transparency

NEWS EDITOR

ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

The leader of Kingston Council is at war with rival Liberal Democrats over contentious links to several redevelopment projects in the borough.

Councillor Kevin Davis tweeted a list of six past and present Liberal Democrat supporters, some who now work for and with property developers with planning applications in Kingston.

It includes former MP Edward Davey, ex-Kingston Council leader Roger Hayes and Michael Green, husband of current Lib Dem leader Liz Green.

The list is in response to a Lib Dem motion – blocked on legal grounds by Kingston Council – that called for Coun Davis to resign as leader or quit his role at PR company Cratus to avoid potential conflicts of interest with future developments.

The Lib Dems have now asked the mayor of Kingston to call an extraordinary meeting and debate the issue in public.

In the document, Coun Davis repeatedly states that none of the people mentioned are doing anything wrong or illegal.

But he concludes: "Everything in this document can be made to sound dodgy, but is it?"

"What is clear is that Coun Green and her Lib Dem colleagues in Kingston have many more questions to answer about their lack of transparency and openness on the issue of development in Kingston than those they defame by their inference of wrongdoing."

Coun Green said: "There is a huge difference between ex-employees and former councillors lobbying in planning and what Coun Kevin Davis is doing.

"He is a serving councillor. He is leader of the council and is also employed as a planning lobbyist.

"I am calling on the mayor to call an extraordinary meeting of the council in order to have the debate.

"All along, I have said it is important the public perception of probity in planning decision-making is critical to ensure the planning system is effective and retains the confidence of all users."

The debate is likely to hinge on whether it is right for Coun Davis, as an elected representative, to hold a position within a company that lobbies on behalf of property developers.

Cratus announced it was pulling out of contracts in Kingston after Coun Davis decided to stand for election to the council in 2014.

The mayor has until Friday to consider the proposal and find a date for the meeting. If after the seven days he has not done so, the Lib Dems can call the meeting by providing five signatories.

THE 'LIBERAL DEMOCRAT' SIX

WYN EVANS

Lib Dem councillor from 1996 to 2002, now managing director of communications company Forty Shillings.

He said: "I was a councillor in Kingston 13 years ago and am no longer involved in party politics."

ROSIE DAY

Worked as a political researcher in the council leader's office from 2009 to 2011. Now communications manager for St George.

A St George spokesman said: "Rosie Day is an employee of St George and has no other employment."

ROGER HAYES

Lib Dem leader of Kingston Council

from 2002 to 2003. Stood down as leader to work for a communications company. Stood down from the council the following year to pursue other business interests.

Remains an active Lib Dem member, and was election agent for Edward Davey when he was re-elected in 2010. He is currently working with developers CNM Estates on the Tolworth Tower redevelopment.

MICHAEL GREEN

Husband of Lib Dem leader Liz Green, and member of the Labour Party. Previously worked in policy, public affairs and political advice. Now works for Kingston Voluntary Action as community projects manager.

He said: "I can't decide which I find more ridiculous, being called a Lib Dem despite my Labour membership, or being referenced about a career I left years ago."

MAX CAMPLIN

Former Lib Dem researcher now managing director of Hard Hat, a public affairs company working on the redevelopment of the former Spillers building in New Malden.

Left his research job in 2007. He said he has no affiliation to any political party.

EDWARD DAVEY

Liberal Democrat MP for Kingston and Surbiton for the past 18 years. Seeking re-election for the fourth time.

Check the facts

Coun Davis cites two property developers who have made political donations to Mr Davey, both declared on the Electoral Commission website.

Coun Davis also refers to an unnamed special adviser who donated "£10s of thousands of pounds [sic]" to Mr Davey.

Mr Davey said: "As an MP, I don't have a planning role on Kingston Council. He [Coun Davis] is leader of the council, leader of the planning authority."

The special adviser is in fact another former Kingston Council leader, Chris Nicholson. He led the Liberal Democrat administration of the 1980s, and quit his job at auditing giant KPMG to join Mr Davey at DECC.

The Electoral Commission website shows he made two £5,000 donations to Mr Davey, one in October 2014 and another in January this year.

Mr Nicholson said: "He [Coun Davis] refers to Ed Davey's special adviser at DECC having given tens of thousands of pounds, which is demonstrably untrue.

"He could have done a simple check and discovered that. The fact I was a special adviser to Ed is irrelevant – the donations came from my savings."

Grazing sheep, mature trees and rows of long-demolished homes – this is how Worcester Park's Central Road used to look 100 years ago.

These images were part of a free exhibition held last weekend at Royal British Legion that showed just how much the area has changed over the past century.

The idea was generated by Pets Place owner Brendan Austin.

Co-organiser Richard Johnson said: "I saw those wonderful old photos that are so far removed from today and thought it would be such a crowd-pleaser."

"It struck me these images would be of great interest to the wider community of all ages and, to aid recognition of often much changed locations, I have re-photographed each scene as accurately as possible – standing as close to where the photographer stood as I could."

The exhibition had 100 photographs, comparing 50 vintage scenes with their modern viewpoints.

SCHOOL PLACES: Some 1,658 children in Kingston managed to get a place at their first choice primary school. From 2,005 applications received, the borough managed to place 82 per cent of children at their preferred school and 92 per cent at one of their top three choices. But 25 children are without a Kingston school place and 79 others were allocated a school they did not choose.

BLOGGER PRIZE: A Surbiton blogger has won a national award. Edita Lozovska, 25, won an individual young person's gong at the UK Blog Awards, for her fashion site Pret-a-reporter. She said: "Unlike other spheres, blogging is one where the community is warm, supportive and friendly, at least in my experience."

ALL-THROUGH: A consultation on the expansion of two Kingston schools into all-through primaries is running. Alexandra Infant School and St Paul's Church of England School would each take four-to-11-year-olds from next September. Numbers for both schools would drop to 60, but between them an extra reception form would be created. Email matthew.paul@achiev ingforchildren.org.uk before May 15, or visit kingston.gov.uk for more.

No answers over child services £7.5m spending cuts

How is it more efficient to pay a separate company to do what the council should already be doing? Surely this is a frontline service, that should be run and managed by the council, with proper accountability for it?

Fines for people leaving dog poo and cigarette butts

About time. The council seem reluctant to catch people littering and fouling the streets and parks of Kingston. Now we just need to see some actual police presence to back up these plans!

Park users – clean up after your dogs

I love living in Kingston. It is the perfect place to bring up my young family and there is the added bonus of London's largest royal park on my doorstep.

However, Richmond Park is overshadowed by one thing – dog fouling.

I had never noticed it much before, but since spending so much more time there with my children, it is clear there is a serious problem that needs addressing.

Even though it is a breach of the park's regulations to not clear up after your dog fouls in the park (police issue £60 on-the-spot fines), a lot of people do not seem bothered.

Whenever I go there I have to be on constant mess watch to make sure my children do not touch it, tread in it or fall in it.

Not the nicest way to spend a sunny day in the park. In fact, I prefer to visit Ham Common now, as the problem does not seem to be anywhere near as bad.

Is it really that difficult to pick up your dog's excrement?

If you do not like doing it, do not own a dog or at least do not come to Richmond Park with it.

Do not get me wrong, I love dogs, but it is quite simply dangerous and unacceptable to allow them to fill the park with mess and not remove it.

I know they are not responsible for the park, but I was really pleased to read in your paper that Kingston Council is trialling a new scheme this summer in the town centre, north Kingston and Surbiton, which will see £80 fines being issued to people not clearing up their dog's mess.

I hope it makes an impact, as it does not appear to be working in Richmond Park.

Thankfully, even the younger generations have been getting involved, as shown by the great work of the Poosaders. The anonymous Kingston children travel around circling dog poo with eco-friendly paint to stop pedestrians putting their foot in it and to highlight the problem.

We need to start naming and shaming the dog owners blatantly refusing to clean up, then maybe they will get the message.

At the end of the day, I realise the situation in Richmond Park is impossible to enforce unless you catch the culprits at the time, and officers have better things to do than watch dogs all day. That is why all visitors need to take responsibility when they visit the park with their dogs, so they do not ruin it for the rest of us.

Unclear signs Of no benefit to town's residents

I discovered an unclear parking area in Queens and Albert Roads in New Malden.

It says the hours of operation are 8.30am to 8.30pm, but does not state the days.

At the start of the street, it states Monday to Saturday in metered parking bays.

In the rest of the street, the days are not clearly marked, but apparently include Sundays and public holidays.

Innocent car owners are being handed out penalty notices on a Sunday as they think the same rules apply to the rest of the street.

If it is all hours, the signage needs to state it. Why is the council making money from innocent motorists?

I have received a leaflet from St George, the developer of the old post office site in Kingston, setting out how wonderful its revised proposal is following "dialogue with local stakeholders and community groups".

This proposed development offers no benefit to the people who actually live and work in the town.

There is little affordable housing and little community or amenity space for such a large site.

The only people who will derive any benefit from this is the developer.

This hideous, overblown development must not go ahead and I urge the council to reject it outright.

@faisalisalam:
 Kingston market square, hundreds of families, undecided voters in afternoon market sunshine, no canvasser in sight. Really a battleground?

Greenbelt is not ideal site for school

Where is the permanent site for the Cobham secondary free school going to be?

Elmbridge Council has not received any planning applications, despite the fact the publicity suggests the site has been agreed and that the school opened in 2014 in temporary accommodation.

Discussions have taken place about a greenbelt site behind the Leg O'Mutton field. This site is virtually landlocked.

Any access would have the effect of gridlocking one of our major roads.

The school's recruitment area this year was extended to 5.65km as the crow flies.

It was suggested that there could be a dedicated access across the Leg O'Mutton field, with people using the Downside Bridge car park as a dropping-off area.

With the secondary school using temporary accommodation at present, where is further such accommodation to be sited until a solution is reached?

We believe the school would like permission for temporary classrooms on the recreation ground.

To achieve this, hard-standing, water, electricity and sewerage would need to be installed and then reversed when no longer needed.

The general public could be deprived of its use of the field for some four to five years.

In 2012, Elmbridge residents voted the field as the QEII jubilee field in perpetuity and, thus, it became part of a trust.

Permission for even a temporary change of use would need to be obtained from Elmbridge Council and almost certainly from the trust.

There are those who feel that the need for a secondary school in the centre of Cobham should take priority over everything else.

We are not opposed to additional secondary school places for children, but there must be a better solution to that which has been indicated.

Consultation with local people has been sadly lacking.

In order to achieve permission to use greenbelt land, there has to be an overwhelming need – not a desire.

Some secondary schools in Elmbridge have attained or applied for academy status.

Plans for Rydens to rebuild and expand have been approved by Elmbridge Council. Heathside, in Weybridge, wishes to expand – traffic plans have to be agreed first.

Esher High will, in 2016, have St Andrew's Primary, in Cobham, as one of its feeder schools for those children living in the catchment area.

Permission for a further secondary free school in Molesey was turned down on the basis it was not required.

Where then, in Elmbridge, is the overwhelming need?

With elections looming, we should be asking our parliamentary candidates where they stand. This letter was written by three concerned Cobham residents.

NHS
Kingston
Clinical Commissioning Group

STOP! THINK WHEN YOU ORDER YOUR REPEAT PRESCRIPTIONS

Naz Jivani, local GP and chair of Kingston Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG)

When ordering repeat prescriptions, many people simply tick the list of medicines on the back, often leading to unused tablets and medicines that may not be required.

We're asking you to check what prescription medicines you already have at home and to only order what you need.

It's estimated that there's around £90 million of unused medicines just sitting around in homes across the country. Add to this the number of prescription medicines returned to pharmacies and disposed of by care homes, and the costs soon mount up even more – to the tune of £300 million a year for the NHS. It's estimated that wasted medicines cost £1.3 million in Kingston alone.

However, it's not all about the money. Unused prescription medicines can also affect your health.

How do unused prescription medicines affect my health?

If you're not taking your prescriptions properly or regularly as prescribed by your GP, you could be missing out on the full health benefits and potentially storing up problems for the future.

If you feel you no longer need certain medicines, your doctor is on hand to review your condition/s and any medication that may be required. Alternatively, if you experience any problems with the medicines you're taking or you want to discuss your medicines in-between your prescription reviews, your community pharmacist is available to help.

Having unused prescription medicines at home may also pose a health hazard to children or others who may take these medicines accidentally. So please re-order only what you need.

wasted
medicines waste money

STOP!

What you can do to help

Local doctors and local people have some great ideas about how we can improve health services across Kingston with the extra money saved from reducing prescription waste. The estimated £300 million a year wasted on unused prescriptions could buy....

- 11,778 community nurses
- 312,000 cataract operations
- Over 80,000 hip replacements
- 19,799 more drug treatment courses for breast cancer
- 300,000 more drug treatment courses for Alzheimer's

Kingston CCG is asking you to only order what you need. Wasted medicines waste money. Help us give the NHS a fantastic boost by reducing the money we spend on wasted medicines.

If you're on repeat prescriptions, STOP! Think again before you next order your medicines.

SEE: what medicines you still have at home before re-ordering your repeat prescription from your pharmacy or GP.

THINK: are you taking all your medication? Speak to your GP/ nurse or pharmacist if you're having difficulty taking or swallowing your medicines or if you've stopped taking any of your medication.

ORDER: only what you need. If you don't need the medicine now – don't order it!

You can still request other items on your repeat prescription at a later stage.

PROTECT: yourself and others by returning unused medicines to your local pharmacy for safe disposal and don't store unused medicines at home.

Are you eligible for the Repeat Dispensing Service?

If you're stable on your medicines, you may be eligible for the Repeat Dispensing Service. This is a national scheme that enables you to pick up your medicines from your community pharmacist for up to 12 months, saving you time and hassle.

To find out whether you're eligible, talk to your doctor.

FEAST of FLAVOUR

The Surbiton Food Festival is back and in full swing.

From the village fete packing out St Andrew's Square to the final sports day, the unorthodox festival is designed to delight and confound.

Restaurants and businesses are vying for attention with games, tasting sessions and demonstrations, while Kingston Pound organisers will hope to spread the reach of their borough-based currency, pictured.

Also new to the festival this year is the mystery of the Seething pasty.

Organisers know the ingredients but need your help in pinning down the recipe. Go online to find the ingredients and present your effort at the village fete on May 10.

The final weekend of the festival will see the Seething sports day run alongside the fun dog show, held in aid of Guide Dogs.

Games and advice are on offer and awards including best puppy and dog that looks most like its owner, will be on offer.

For details of events, visit surbitonfoodfestival.org.

For information about the Kingston Pound scheme, visit kingstonpound.org.

● The Surbiton Food Festival runs until May 17. Key events include: Saturday, May 9 and Sunday, May 10: Village fete and beer festival, from noon to 6pm in St

Andrew's Square; Saturday, May 16: Maple Road Farmers' Market, 9am to 1pm in Maple Road; Saturday, May 16:

Seething community sports day and fun dog show, from noon to 4pm in Victoria Recreation Ground.

● Kingston Welcomes Korea; various locations with festival hub in the Rose Theatre; July 29 to August 8; rosetheatrekingston.org.

KOREAN STYLE

Kingston will be welcoming Korea this summer with a series of festival activities celebrating the culturally diverse nation, writes Rachel Burford.

Centred around the Rose Theatre, the festival will showcase the very best Korea has to offer.

Billed as a "party with a purpose", the event combines an arts festival with a trade fair that will span the whole of Kingston town centre.

Events will include Seoul-based dance and comedy teams at the Rose, Anglo-Korean concerts at All Saints Church and exhibitions from the new generation of Korean artists at Kingston College's Creative Industries Centre and Kingston Museum.

The Rose will also be hosting a Jangmadang, the Korean word for market place, and Guildhall will host a green debate, bringing together Eastern and Western views on climate change into one global discussion.

In Market Place there will be Korean designs for a new Royal garden for the Coronation Stone, a Korean picnic, drumming and break-dancing plus many more events.

With an estimated 10 per cent of the borough's population being of Korean heritage, John Elsom the Rose's director of international festival seasons, says this type of festival is a long time coming.

He says: "This festival celebrates the civilisation of Korea from which we in Kingston have benefited so much, its technology and flair, as well as its artistry. "This will be the first of the Kingston Welcomes Festivals, a not-for-profit company that Kwon Suhka, Mary Reid and I have set up, with the help of the Rose and the Royal Borough of Kingston, to engage with cultures from many parts of the world whose outlooks may be different from our own."

The fact this festival is focusing on just one nation and its contribution to British culture, especially in Kingston, is unusual says Elsom.

He says: "There are many international festivals where you can see a Polish theatre company, an exhibition from France and a jazz band from Ukraine all in the same day. But this can feel a bit random.

"We want to engage with another civilisation, the Republic of Korea, which is of a similar size to ours but different in its outlook."

"We want Korean artists to collaborate with British ones, so that our events will contain many cross-over performances, as well as traditional sounding works. And we want to exchange ideas on another level."

Peter's new FLAVA

Television favourite Peter Andre is taking to the stage at this year's Hampton Court Palace Festival. Complete with a live band, Andre's performance is set to be vastly different to his 90s pop days. LAURA PROTO caught up with him before the show Laura Proto: You rose to fame on the music scene in the 1990s and have since become a household name through television. Do you still get the same buzz being on stage now as you did then?

Peter Andre: Even more so now because now I get to perform with a full, live band. We travel and do our own stuff and have a great, great night and people are really entertained and it means a lot to me. In the past, I was so concerned about the lights being right and so on, and didn't really think about the joy of it. But now, I just do it to enjoy it.

LP: What do you most look forward to about performing?

PA: I just think for that moment of time, the audience is with you and it is your time to give them all the love in the world. More so when it is your own concert because you know they have paid to come to see you. There is a lot of banter and it is a lot of fun.

LP: What will be different about your show at Hampton Court Palace to your usual performances?

PA: It is a stunning backdrop and stunning venue. It is just the fact people will have an opportunity to see you doing something different. On stage, I am a completely different person to the one you see on TV. One thing I guarantee is they will be entertained. That is what it is all about. Sometimes when I've been a judge on

On stage, I am a completely different person to the one you see on TV shows, I'm asked what makes a good singer and it is a performer. Everyone can sing in their own ways but it is very rare that you find someone who can capture the crowd, like Robbie Williams and Michael Jackson. The point is, I perform and that to me is a big, big part of a show.

LP: What songs will you be performing?

PA: It will be a mix of stuff to keep the crowd completely entertained. I say that I have had four No 1s and 10 top five singles, but I say the fact you remember me because of them is irrelevant. You can't just do a concert of your songs, you have to show people where you get inspiration from. I am always showing people where I have been inspired from. From rock 'n' roll to swing, I like to throw in other artists' songs as well. I love getting the crowd involved – there is nothing worse than being self-involved.

LP: What do your children, Junior and Princess, make of you being on stage?

PA: They want to be on stage with me. Junior has started taking drumming lessons and Bista [Princess] wants to sing. She's only seven, bless her, but she asks me what to do. I say "look in the mirror and pretend you're on stage".

Due to the affordability tests introduced 12 months ago, first time buyers will need to get their finances in order to secure a mortgage this spring, writes Anna Francis.

Just saving up a deposit used to be the hardest part of buying a home, but now the mortgage application process is tougher than ever before.

Luckily with the spring weather comes a thaw in the first time buyer mortgage market.

Some of the really tough affordability requirements are now being relaxed and mortgage rates are falling. Here are four simple steps to spring mortgage success:

Get Saving: Interest rates on mortgages are currently dropping quickly, and some five-year fixed-rate deals are on offer for less than two per cent at the moment. Unfortunately though, the best mortgage deals will go to the borrowers who have the largest deposit.

Experts are saying that if you can put down at least a 10 per cent deposit, you are more likely to get the better offers and end up with lower monthly payments.

Many banks and building societies have special saving schemes that can help first time buyers increase their deposit.

Arrange Your Finances: It is vital that you have your finances in order when applying for a mortgage. If you don't have the biggest deposit, then your application is likely to be scrutinized by lenders.

If you have any marks on your credit history, then you are much more likely to be rejected.

Go to a credit reference agency like Equifax or Experian and see what your current credit rating is. Try and pay off any debts you have as soon as you can and get your finances in order.

Consider the Affordability Challenge: The affordability tests that were introduced as part of the Mortgage Market Review last year scared both lenders and borrowers, and resulted in lenders carefully inspecting every application in great detail to ensure borrowers could cover repayments.

Some lenders are now taking a more laid back approach to applications, but it still a good idea for first time buyers to spend some time looking into their bank account in the run up to a mortgage application. Any unnecessary spending should be cut back on, so that each month you end up with plenty of cash that could be used for repayments.

Look Around: Research from the Lloyds Banking Group has found that 80 per cent of first time buyers think lenders don't want to offer them mortgages. This isn't actually the case at all, and borrowers just need to look in the right places.

Local building societies are often the best bet when it comes to first time buyers, as they will analyse applications on an individual basis. You could try using a mortgage broker, as they will know who is more lenient with first time buyers, but it's important to find a no or low fee broker as you don't want to have to pay them a huge sum of money.

Those in their 40s are in the most likely group to become first-time landlords, a survey by Rentguard Insurance reveals.

Some 40 per cent of those purchasing a buy-to-let investment for the first time were in this age bracket.

They were followed in second place by those in the 50+ age bracket (24 per cent) and those aged between 30 -39 (19 per cent).

The landlord insurance specialists asked customers the question 'How old were you when you first became a landlord?' on the Property Eye section of their website.

Perhaps surprisingly, 17 per cent of those surveyed were aged just 20-29 when they became a landlord for the first time.

"The results show that those in their 40s are looking towards property as an investment for their money," said Steve Jones, Rentguard director.

Forties to cash in on property

"With the recent relaxing of pension rules we expect the fifty plus bracket, and even those in their 60s, to be the biggest growing group over the next year or two," added Jones.

According to a report earlier this year by the Halifax, the average age of a first buyer of an owner occupied property was 30 years old, up from 29 in 2011.

The region with the oldest average age of this type of buyer was London at 32.

Charles at the Sharpes end of squash

Kingston squash professional Charles Sharpes was hoping to add the Premier Squash League title to his list of personal accolades this week.

The 23-year-old, right, was part of stellar St George's Hill Squash Club to face Coolhurst in the semi-finals of the competition on Tuesday looking for a place in tonight's final.

Sharpes, currently ranked 64th in the world, has won five of his six matches in the league this season.

ALL CHANGE: Departed Howard will not pinch Byatt and Bracken from Casuals

Staying put

SPORTS EDITOR
STUART AMOS

samos@
 london.newsquest.co.uk

Departing Corinthian Casuals boss Matt Howard has assured fans star men Jamie Byatt and Danny Bracken will not be following him to Carshalton Athletic.

Howard, who led Casuals to a 13th place finish in Ryman Division One South this season, was unveiled as the Robins' new manager over the weekend with Casuals coach Luke Garrard as his assistant.

Byatt bagged 21 league goals for the King George's Field outfit last term passing the 100-career-goals mark for the club in the process.

Coupled with the goalkeeping exploits of Bracken, he helped Casuals set a new points haul record and has become a cult hero in Brazil with sister club Corinthian Paulista.

Howard feels he has moved to a club with the potential to gain promotion to the Ryman Premier, but has insisted he will not be pilfering Byatt and Bracken – whose brother James, below, is the new man in the hotseat – from a club where they have become legends.

But he has not ruled out stealing one or two others.

"You can never say so who knows if Corinthian players will join me," he said.

"They are quite a loyal bunch there.

"When I took over at Casuals everybody told me that players were going to leave but they never did.

"We only used 19 players last season.

"We had offers from elsewhere but no one left.

"I told the players I was leaving at the weekend and Jamie Byatt was the first to say 100 per cent that he would be staying at Casuals.

"Danny is the best keeper in that league and should probably be playing at a higher level, but his brother is manager now, so will not be leaving.

"He will go down as a Corinthian Casuals legend in time."

He added: "I thought we underachieved last season, but to set a new points total record of 58 is something I'm very proud of.

"With all due respect, it will be difficult to take Casuals

Going nowhere: Corinthian Casuals striker Jamie Byatt, above centre, has already told ex-boss Matt Howard he will not quit King George's Field for Carshalton Athletic and Danny Bracken, right, is unlikely to leave older brother James in the lurch either any further, but there is so much potential at Carshalton, it was an opportunity I could not refuse."

Casuals moved swiftly to appoint James Bracken as Howard's replacement and he arrives with good pedigree.

He led Sutton United reserves to a third consecutive Suburban League Premier Division title this season in a campaign that has seen his side collect seven trophies in all.

"I'm delighted to be taking charge at Corinthian Casuals, a club with unrivaled history," said Bracken senior this week.

"This has come after eight years of success at Sutton

United and I would like to thank them for their support.

"I look forward to taking this special club forward both on and off the pitch in what I hope will be an exciting new chapter in the club's history."

Club spokesman Stuart Tree added: "We're all really excited to have James on board.

"His track record is immense and he's incredibly passionate about what he does.

"His work ethic, determination and dedication will surely prove to be a huge asset for Casuals and we're already looking forward to next season."

Threadbare Surbiton fall at the last

Leading scorer Matt Daly's absence and an injury to Great Britain international Michael Grassick proved the difference as Men's Cup favourites Surbiton failed to lift the trophy on Saturday.

Head coach Todd Williams, shorn of four first team players ahead of the weekend, saw Grassick limp out in the warm-up to his side's 5-1 defeat to Reading.

Daly's absence due to work commitments, saw Surbiton miss all four of their penalty corner attempts, while Reading – beaten in both league encounters with the Sugden Road outfit this term – bagged four goals from their six.

Surbiton's short-staffed second string fielded five Kingston Grammar School students and two Reed's School pupils and were subsequently overpowered 3-1 by Cannock in their cup final at the same Queen Elizabeth Park venue.

Hams still at helm

New Tooting & Mitcham United first team coach Mark Hams remains in charge of Kingstonian's academy, but is in talks with the club over his future, writes Stuart Amos

Hams, former assistant to Ks legend Alan Dowson, was unveiled as part of the Terrors' management team last week after the Imperial Fields club confirmed manager Craig Tanner would not be in charge next term.

Hams set-up Ks' academy, in conjunction with Guildford College, during his spell at Kingsmeadow.

"At present I'm still in charge, but there are discussions to be had," he said this week.

Former Tooting player Hams is hosting a benefit day at Walton Casuals this Sunday for brother Neil Hams, who was struck down by motor neurone disease earlier this year.

The event, featuring a charity football match, kicks-off at noon and also features face painting, live music, a bouncy castle and a football memorabilia auction.

"It is all about raising awareness of the illness and getting friends and family together for a good day in aid of Neil," added Hams.

SPORTSbrief

BRONZE FOR IZZY: Kingston Royals youngster Isobel Hyatt, above, claimed a deserved bronze medal on the opening day of the London Regional Swimming Championships on Saturday. Hyatt clocked two minutes 36.6 seconds to finish third in the U16 girls' 200m butterfly – six seconds adrift of second place. Dylan Conway finished just outside of the medals in the U15 boys 100m breast stroke on Monday. Conway was fourth in 1:13.1. The championships continue this weekend.

YOUNG STARS: Kingston & Polytechnic Harriers' relay squads provided the highlights in their UK Youth Development U13/U15 League Division South South/West One match in Uxbridge on Saturday. The U15 girls romped home to win the 4x100m event, while the U15 boys claimed the 4x300m race. Beckett Whiting won the U15 boys 100m in 13.4 seconds, while Aaron Wilson won both the U13 boys high jump and shot setting a new personal best of 7.49m in the latter.

EDGED OUT: New Malden-based KCS Old Boys suffered extra-time heartbreak in the final of the Surrey Rugby Cup at Esher RFC on Monday. London Division Two South West KCS had held Division One South Guildford 19-19 at the end of normal time only to lose out by a point in the extra period.

CRICKET: Malden Wanderers head to Old Whitgiftians for the opening fixture of the Surrey Championship Division One season on Saturday. Chessington head to Dulwich in Division Two, while Kingstonian CC kick off their Division Four campaign with the visit of Farncombe to King's College Sports Ground.

STUCK IN A RUT: Clapham Chasers athlete Martin Rutter set a new parkrun personal best of 17 minutes five seconds to make it two wins from two appearances at the Kingston parkrun on Saturday. Stragglers Running Club's Maddie Garner was the first woman home in fourth [19:12].

I COULD HAVE DANCED ALL NIGHT

Jane Dowrick wanted some shoes to help her dance all night. Foot Solutions had the answers

Primary school teacher Jane Dowrick wanted to look her best for her son's wedding. Being a keen dancer she was looking forward to stepping out onto the dance floor. But she faced a problem. As Jane explains, "I can't wear high heels for very long because I suffer from back and hip pain. To make matters worse I also have a bunion."

But she was determined to have a good time and decided to splash out on a new outfit for the day and a cocktail dress for the evening. However, she was still unsure what shoes she could wear for style and comfort. "I decided to visit Foot Solutions – and I'm so glad I did!" adds Jane.

"I spent an hour with their staff undergoing tests and scans to monitor how I walked and pinpoint any problems. To my surprise they had a great range of fashionable heels. I chose a pair of gold Ziera shoes which were perfect. These together with the special custom inserts supplied by Foot Solutions, meant I was ready for the big day. I was the first one on the dance floor and the last one off – I could have danced all night!"

"The staff at Foot Solutions were so helpful and professional" says Jane. "It was a genuinely lovely experience."
